

The fruit of fungi is what we see above ground and they grow in all different shapes, sizes and colours. How many can you find in this forest? Colour them in.

Mycelium is the part of the fungi hidden underground, which looks like a network of tiny threads. Can you imagine this web of life in the soil, including the fascinating creatures like earthworms, bugs and bacteria, interacting with one another? Draw from your imagination in the space below.

